COLLEGE ANNIVERSARIES.

We have alluded to our own University commencement; it was a gathering worthy of commemoration. The soldiers' Alumni by their presence added largely to the attractiveness of the occasion. This was the case at all the commencements in the country. Memorial structures or buildings perpetuating the memory of the martyred dead was proposed at nearly all the college anniversaries.

At Dartmouth, Chief Justice Chase graced the occasion. In a speech he pronounced himself in favor of colored suffrage. In reference to a memorial building he eloquently spoke.

"He would rear it in all the massive-ness and strength of iron and granite and in all the beauty and perfection of design which the highest architectural skill and taste could devise. He would fill that memorial hall with the portraits of the martyred heroes of Dartmouth, and its niches with the sculptured forms of her distinguished sons whose lives and services have made her name honored in the land. But he would also erect to their memory and to the memory of every martyr in this war a broader, a grander monument, by laying the foundation of four regenerated redeemed Union upon the solid pedestals and immovable corner stones of universe liberty and equality. This monument, this civil structure, so replete with the elements of moral grandeur, should possess such amplitude of base, and such majestic altitude of political, social and moral purity and beauty that its towering apex as it meets the serene skies of Heaven, and its vast base as it covers our whole land and the world, should be gilded with the eternal rays of the sun of freedom and liberty."

Harvard and Yale outdid all others.
The N. Y. Tribune says:

"The old way of Commencement was broken up, old traditions forgotten, and suddenly the enthusiasm of the young men, the devoted patriotism of both young and old, gave strength and force to the primness of college ceremonies."

Yale sent 786 pupils to the war—574 graduates.

"Many return no more; but the living she summoned back to hall and grove to tell them that no trophies of 'leaving or civil honor are comparable to that fame which the soldier of the Union has fought for; the dead she points to in the spirit of that more than Roman mother who said when her son took command of the first colored regiment from the north—'I am as proud of him as if I had heard that he was shot.'"

The following choice original poem was read at Harvard, by Wendell Holmes:

Four summers joined their golden light in leaves,
Four wasteful autumns flung them to the gale,
Four winters wore the shroud the tempest
weaves
The fourth was April wept o'er hill and vale,
And still the war-clouds scowled on sea and land,
With the red gleams of battle staining thro,
When lo! as parted by an angel hand
They open, and the Heaven's again are blue.

Which is the dream, the present or the past?
The night of anguish or the joyous morn?
The long, long years with horrors overcast,
Or the sweet promise of the day new-born?

Tell us, oh father, as thine arms are folded
Thy belted first-born in their fast embrace,
Murmuring the prayer the patriarch breathed
When he gave the first of his fatal fall;
But quiver that cradle of a nation,
Where infant warriors sprout, their epaulets,
That school which reared to meet the Nation's want,
The peerless man and soldier, General Grant!

Thanks, too, for him, the gallant, dashing
blade,
Light in the saddle, but heavy on a raid,
Whose gallant rides will live on storied page
Like the brave exploits of a knightly age,
Who turned the valley of the Shenandoah
Into a long resounding threshing floor,
Where sabre flails whipped out the rebel
grain;

And straw and chaff were threshed, and
threshed again,
Man of few inches, every inch a giant,
Flower of our chivalry, Phil Sheridan!

FROM TWENTY TO THIRTY-SIX AND FROM THIRTY-SIX TO THIRTY-SEVEN, the probability of a widower marrying in a year is three times as great as that of a bachelor. At thirty it is nearly four times as great from thirty to forty-five is nearly five times as great, and it increases, until at sixty the chance of a widower marrying in a year is eleven times as great as that of a bachelor. It is also curious to remark how confirmed either class becomes in its condition in life—how little likely, after a few years, is a bachelor to break his habits and solitary condition; and on the other hand, how readily does a husband contract a second marriage, who has been deprived prematurely of his first partner.

After the age of thirty the probability of a bachelor marrying in a year, diminishes in a more rapid rate. The probability at thirty-five is not much more than half that at thirty, and nearly the same proportion exists between each quinquennial period afterwards. —

FREE TO DO RIGHT—TO DO WRONG, NEVER.

We clasp, unflinching from the bloody sword.

Theirs was the mighty work that seems foretold;
They know not half their glorious toil has won.

For this is Heaven's same battle—joined of old
When Athens fought for us at Marathon!

Behold a vision none hath understood!
The breaking of the Apocalyptic seal;
Twice rings the summons—Hail, and fire,
and blood!

Then the third angel blows his trumpet
peal.

Loud wail the dwellers on the myrtled coasts.
The green savannas swell the maddened
cry,
And with a yell from all the demon hosts Falls the great star called Wormwood, from the sky!

Bitter it mingles with the poisoned flow
Of the warm rivers winding to the shore, Thousands must drink the waves of death and woe,
But the star Wormwood stains the heavens
no more!

Peace smiles at last; the Nation calls her sons
To sheath the sword, her battle flag she furly,
Speaks in glad triumph from unshodded guns
And hides her rubies under milk-white pearls.

O ye that fought for Freedom, living, dead,
One sacred host of God's anointed Queen,
For every holy drop your veins have shed
We breathe a welcome to our bowers of green!

Welcome, ye living! from the foeman's gripe
Your country's banner it was yours to wrest.

Ah, many a forehead shows the banner stripe
And stars, once crimson, hallow many a breast.

And ye, pale heroes, who from glory's bed Mark when your old battalions form in line,
Move in their marching ranks with noiseless
tread,
And shape unheard the evening countersign.

Come with your comrades, the returning brave,
Shoulder to shoulder they await you here;
These lent the life their martyr brothers gave,
Living and dead alike forever dear.

The following is an extract of an original poem at West Point by Dr. Holland (Timothy Titcomb). The writer had just been speaking of the fact that before the war West Point was at a discount, and was considered by many a useless waste of money. He then proceeded to speak of one of the West Point heroes thus:

Thanks to the school that gave to us the life
That has flamed highest in our noble strife;
The splendid soldier and the modest man,
Who, with the hand to strike, and the head to plan.

Rose in the nation in the darkest hour
And rose from prowess up to power;
Whose giant combinations and campaigns
Won from his boys the sobriquet—"Old Brains."

One thrill of joy we all remember well;
When Donelson, with all his thousand fell;
And when upon our nation's day of days,
After fierce struggles and prolonged delays,
Belaguered Vicksburg dropped the rebel flag
And bowed in dust before the Nation's flag;
And thirty thousand prisoners of war
Marched out amid the smoke of one cigar.

Phrases were powerless to express our joy,
And e'en the bravest shouted like a boy;
But when our hero with his heroes all Came before the nation's capitol,
And like a building fixed his awful grip
Relentlessly on Richmond's quivering lip,
And held it quivering till his plans matured
And all his minor triumphs were secured,
And then shook out of its guilty soul
And swallowed Lee and all his army whole,
We went crazy, shouted, laughed, and cried,
Bells rang, burst powder, sang and gloried;
Praised all we heard of, and lauded most of all
Him who had given the foe his fatal fall;
But quiver that cradle of a nation,
Where infant warriors sprout, their epaulets,
That school which reared to meet the Nation's want,
The peerless man and soldier, General Grant!

Thanks, too, for him, the gallant, dashing
blade,
Light in the saddle, but heavy on a raid,
Whose gallant rides will live on storied page
Like the brave exploits of a knightly age,
Who turned the valley of the Shenandoah
Into a long resounding threshing floor,
Where sabre flails whipped out the rebel
grain;

And straw and chaff were threshed, and

GEN. SHERMAN ON HIS WESTERN CAMPAIGNS.

Here in St. Louis probably, began the great centre movement which terminated the war, a battlefield such as never before was seen, extending from ocean to ocean almost, with the right wing and left wing; and from the centre here I remember one evening, ap-

The Ypsilanti Commercial.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY, BY
C. R. PATTISON.

FAR BETTER.

Far better would it have been for the black man to have remained a slave than to be free and not a citizen. There is no middle ground between servitude and citizenship. Deprived of this and still nominally free he is something cast loose by itself out of social harmony, like a foreign substance having no chemical affinities with the system in which it is naturally placed. This loose matter must be expelled or in some way be incorporated. Men in the State yet not of the State present a political anomaly. They can be to the body politic only a source of irritation or of dangerous malignant disease.

Cut off from civil relation the freedman is in danger of becoming a floating pest. He cannot remain in this unnatural position. He will breed a greater pestilence than the old one from which we supposed he was delivered. What shall be done then with the freedman? The solution of the question admits of only one answer—MAKE A MAN OF HIM.

We must either defy the law of God, drive the freedman out to the society of the beasts and thus debase ourselves and incur the judgment of Heaven, or we must elevate him—permit him rather to elevate himself—to a true manhood with the possible attainment of all that belongs to membership in this one common humanity.

HON. J. M. GREGORY.
Out readers doubtless noticed in our last week's issue the testimonial to Hon. J. M. Gregory. A portion of the fund was expended in a very fine likeness of Mr. G., to be published in Barnard's Journal of Education.

We notice that Madison University has recently bestowed upon him the honor of L. L. D.

CORRECTION
In Mr. Van Posen's article last week "gross injury," in 5th line, should have read "grave injury." "Perfect nuisance" should be "public nuisance." "N. Gorham" should be N. Gorham.

MR. DUANE DOTY, a former resident of Ann Arbor and ex-Editor of the Free Press has been elected superintendent of the Schools in Detroit.

CURRENT EVENTS.
We barely announced last week that the Pewabic had sunk in Lake Huron, sweeping seventy-five to a hundred almost instantaneously into a watery grave. It was, no doubt, the result of gross carelessness. It would seem that on a highway from fifty to two hundred miles in width two vessels might pass, both seeing each other, both having lights, without colliding. Mr. R. C. Jackson, with his wife, the engineer, bravely stood at his post, and went down with the vessel. Mrs. Wm. J. Wells, of Ann Arbor was lost. Prof. Douglas and family on board were providentially saved.

STATEMENT OF MR. RUSSELL.
At about 8 o'clock on Wednesday evening, the 9th inst., the propeller Pewabic, Capt. McKay on her down trip, about eight miles from shore, came in collision with the Meteor, Capt. Wilson, on her upper voyage. The Meteor struck the Pewabic just under the pilot-house, literally smashing up her bow. The boats were running at the rate of twelve miles an hour, and the crash was awful, causing the Pewabic to go down in the short space of three or four minutes. A number were killed by the crashing timbers. But few of the passengers of the Pewabic had time to jump upon her dock upon those of the Meteor on the wreck of the Pewabic, sunk entirely out of sight beneath the seething waters. The sight was terrible and heart-rending as the cries and groans of the unfortunate passengers rose upon the rolling swells of the surging billows. The life boats of the Meteor were lowered in due time and a number saved from timely and watery graves.

The night was foggy and forbidding, yet at the time and before the collision occurred, they were seen respectively by each six miles off. There were about 175 or 200 passengers on the Pewabic. We have the names of seventy-five of the passengers saved and 23 of the crew.

We are unable to ascertain the number of lives lost; as near as it can be estimated is supposed to be about seventy.

The Meteor remained near where the wreck sunk till morning, in order to pick up the floating bodies. The Mohawk passing down, was signaled, and promptly came to the rescue. The pumps of the Meteor were worked for safety and precaution, as she had sustained a slight injury from the shock. As soon as it was light the boats cruised around among the floating debris to pick up passengers, but so long a time had elapsed that none were found. The leak was effectually checked, and she passed on her way to Portage Lake.

Strange coincidence! But very few hours afterwards the Meteor takes fire and is scuttled, and sunk in the Sault Canal basin.

SAULT STEAMER, Aug. 12, 1865.
via Marquette, Aug. 12th.

The steamer Meteor took fire at seven this morning, in her forward hold, and was scuttled and sunk in twelve feet of water. The fire was extinguished at 11 o'clock. Have sent to Marquette for steam pump. We stripped her of all her furniture. Her freight is damaged but we are unable to say how much. The boat is injured, but we think not materially. She lies in canal basin.

We since learn that the boat is raised without material damage, though there will be heavy loss of freight.

The next event is the visit of Gen. Grant to Detroit. He was warmly welcomed by speeches from Theodore Remy and Hon. J. M. Howard. Mr. R. closed thus: "You, sir, have not only reached the end of this war, confessedly first among our Generals, but in your hands the torch of fidelity to unselfish patriotism has ever burned brightly. [Cheers.]

You have added to the moral wealth of the country by giving to it your example; and its influence and your reputation is now and forever a part of our heritage.

"For thou art Freedom's now, and Fame's! One of the few immortal names! That were not born to die."

Graciously, earnestly we bid you welcome."

Hon. J. M. Howard closed as follows: "We make no boast nor throw down the gauntlet, but let foreign interests tread on our corns and beware. We entertain no fear of threats for strength. We will keep peace if they will. But if envious of our prosperity, of a free people and a free government, they seek to insult us, let them remember that we have Ulysses S. Grant, and a score of others, (cheers), who have conducted us through a war unparalleled in history; and that although ages pass, there will be other Grants, Sheridans and Sheridans to conduct freedom to victory. So long as time shall last there be men to rush to the rescue, and teach tyrants lessons in the halls of their own palaces. [Cheers.]

We have not yet given up the Monroe doctrine, [cheers], the effect of which is to prevent colonization on this continent—that upon this continent, from the polar seas to the Southern cross, where there is the least claim for our protection, we will not permit a usurper to ascend a throne without teaching him what we have taught the rebels we have subdued. We did not get up the issue with Mexico. We were engaged in a rebellion, and whilst thus engaged the Emperor of the French took advantage of our feebleness and made war upon Mexico. He saw fit to call a scion of the House of Hapsburg, an offshoot of Austria, to the halls of Montezuma, and thus attempt the establishment of an imperial government. Trust the time is not far distant when he will feel like the man who bought the elephant, and that imitating the example of his people, he will take 'French leave,' and say in all kindness that he has done all that he can to uphold the throne, and leave it to its fate. Maximilian will leave in the rear of the army or perhaps be found in the front rank. [Applause.]

The only speech the General made was, "gentlemen, I bid you all good-night."—A terrible hurricane has occurred in the South Pacific Ocean, and one Island washed away.—That fearful scourge, the cholera in the east, is abating.—The cable looks like a failure. It parted on the 21st inst.—There has been a gigantic forgery. E. Ketchum, of the firm of Ketchum & Son, has obtained the enormous amount of $2,000,000 and absconded.—All the troops now in the field have been paid up to the 30th of June, with the exception of Sheridan's command in Texas.

Since the 1st of May, half a million of soldiers have been mustered out, and 200,000 are waiting to be mustered out.—The forgeries of Ketchum is producing an immense excitement in New York, and will, probably, bring about a revolution in the method of doing bank business.

LATER NEWS informs us that owing to the parting of the cable, the Great Eastern has returned to England.—An earthquake occurred on the Mississippi river. Considerable damage is reported at Memphis.

THE NATIONAL DENTAL ASSOCIATION.

CHICAGO, July 29, 1865.

EDITOR OF YPSILANTI COMMERCIAL:

—The fifth Annual meeting of the American Dental Association has terminated, after a session of four days.

The proceedings occupying the whole time from eight o'clock in the morning, until late at night, except short intermissions for meals. The Convention has been largely attended, delegates having been present, from nearly every local society in the United States.

It has been truly a national gathering, and as such, has brought together men possessing a wide diversity of views, and following all the leading modes of practice.

The Convention now adjourned, comprised on its rolls, a very large amount of intelligence. Many of the greatest lights on the continent have taken part in its discussions, enlightening their brethren in the complicated art of dental practice.

These discussions have not been altogether of a character, to be of interest to the general reader, though many things were said, which would be of interest to all.

One very important feature of the gathering, has been the complete recognition of the necessary connection of the dental science with general Anatomy and Pathology, it is the very recognition that lifts specialism from the hands of quackery, where it has been so generally held by the public and the practitioner.

This aim has received full countenance by the medical profession here. The sessions of Conventions have been attended by many of the most prominent medical men, among whom we may mention Prof. Davis, Rea, Brainerd, Andrew Miller, and others who have watched the proceedings with interest. It is due both to the medical and dental profession, that the delegates have been treated with uniform courtesy, being entertained two evenings at the residences of Prof. Davis and Miller, and also one evening at Dr. Alport's. Long and dear in the memory of each delegate, will remain the hospitality of Chicago.

The following are a few points of interest to the general reader:

Sozodont was condemned in the strongest terms, it being an alkaline potash, dissolves everything but the lime from the tooth, and leaves it altogether composed of chalk. We want neither acids nor alkalis, but we do want salts, combinations of the two, either of which in excess, is injurious.

The following preamble and resolution was adopted:

Whereas, In the opinion of the American Dental Association, no less than two years of pupillage in the office of a competent dentist, and an attendance upon two full courses of lectures in a Dental College, are necessary to qualify a student to practice Dentistry properly, therefore

Resolved, That practitioners of dentistry be requested not to take students for a less term than two years, and for no consideration, unless they agree to attend lectures, and graduate from a Dental College before they enter upon the practice of the profession, and that the people should demand of all those who hereafter enter upon the practice of Dentistry, that they should hold a diploma from a dental college, as the first requisite to public confidence and patronage.

Many other things of interest were brought up which time and space will not permit us to detail. We would only add a request to the ladies.

That they refrain from wearing "waterfalls" and "horns," when presenting themselves for operations, as it frequently is, with difficulty, that an operator can get near the head of his patient.

INCOME RETURNS.

For 1865, 3d Dist., 13th Division, Enoch Yost, Assistant Assessor.

From the Underwriter's Weekly Circular.

LIFE INSURANCE & HOMOEOPATHY.

In December last the directors and shareholders of the 'General Provident Assurance Company,' in London held a meeting to consider the bearing of the system of homoeopathic medical treatment in the health and life of the company. At this meeting it was determined to make an investigation into the hitherto unexplored region of comparative medical treatment, with a view to a change of rates in certain cases, if such change was deemed desirable, the directors after obtaining the requisite data, submitted to the shareholders a proposition, "to open a special section for persons treated by the homoeopathic system at a lower scale of premium than that charged on other lives."

The proposition was adopted, and the company is now working on this system. The London Homoeopathic Review is very jubilant at the matter, and says: "It is not with 'individual opinion' that our opponents have now to deal, not even with the opinion of such men as the late Archbishop of Dublin; the late Dr. Gregory, Professor of Chemistry in the University of Edinburgh, and the late Dr. Samuel Brown, a man worthy to rank with the illustrious Faraday, all of whom lived and died in the faith and truth of Homoeopathy, not to mention a host of other names of men living and dead, in every department of literature, science and art. It is not with individual opinion we repeat, that our opponents have now to deal. They are now confronted with the result of an investigation directed to be made by a body of commercial men, for commercial purposes, conducted with that marvelous precision which has exalted the investigations of the Assurance offices of this country to the rank of scientific verities, and indorsed by men, whose intellectual faculties when summoned to decide, must have been in the liveliest exercise; seeing that they had to determine on a question in which they were without precedent for a guide, and in which their pecuniary interests were deeply concerned."

FARM & HOUSEHOLD.
SHOEING HORSES THAT OVER-REACH.

In the Mark Lane Express, a blacksmith, who has had much experience in the art of shoeing, contends that in order to prevent horses from over-reaching they should be shod as follows:—Make the toe-caulks very low, forward, standing a little under, and the shoes set as far back as convenient, with heel caulk, so as to let the foot roll over as quick as possible. On the hind foot I have the heel-caulk low, and the toe-caulk high, and projecting forward, keeping back the hind foot while coming up over a high toe-caulk, thus giving time for the forward foot to get out of the way. If thus shod, the horse will travel clean, without an click, and his speed will be increased on a trot fifteen or twenty seconds in a mile. The Express has the following comments on the above method:—"The reverse of this rule is generally practised. The blacksmiths, in view of preventing overreaching, usually set the forward shoes as far forward as possible, and set the hind shoes as far back from the toe as they conveniently can. It remains for intelligent blacksmiths to decide which is the best method."

HAVING THINGS HANDY.
Under this head could be comprised many things, but I will only mention a few, and many would probably pursue a different course, but as we are all different in form and manners, so in expression.

In the first place, to have handy stumps, that is loose ones that when you mow you can work up to them, and just get off the machine, and move them and mow on, and when you rake do the same. Then again at plowing and harrowing such stumps are equally handy.

It is handy to leave the moving machine in the mow ready for another year. This is also handy for the manufacturer. We can leave the plows, harrows and horse rakes all in the field, handy for another year. It is not always convenient to haul these things into the barn or shed, and then drag them back in the same field next season; it is certainly more handy to leave them where next wanted. Now if we only think of these things we can save many steps by having things handy.—Cor. Ohio Farmer.

HARNESS.—During stormy days and leisure hours, clean, repair, oil and varnish harness. Always wet dry leather before oiling. Neat's foot oil is best for harness. An excellent black varnish for harness is half a pound of gum shellac dissolved in a pint of good alcohol, an ounce of good lamp black, and one ounce of gum camphor, corked tight in a bottle, shaken up frequently and apply with a swab or brush. Add more alcohol if too thick.

CUTTING OFF TEATS.—"F. O. W." desires us to answer through the Agriculturist what to do with a double teat on one of his heifers. Twist a piece of small wire around it sufficiently tight, to obstruct all circulation. In 10 or 12 days the teat will drop off, and new skin will form over the scar. This should not be done, however, when a cow gives milk, for the flow of milk would prevent a scab forming over it.

WEEDS.—These hinder the growth of woody plants as well as they do that of faster growing ones, and every one who raises nursery stock, either for his own use or for sale, will find it to his advantage to keep the plants free of weeds and the soil stirred.

ONIONS.—Harvest as soon as the majority of the tops fall over. Dry thoroughly if they are to be stored. Many send their onions directly from the field to the market, instead of storing them.
